2015 ASN Canada FIA Canadian Time Attack Championship Event Awarded

Mississauga, Ontario – April 19, 2015

ASN Canada FIA has announced that the ASN Canada FIA Canadian Time Attack Championship presented by Toyo Tires will return to Atlantic Motorsport Park on Labour Day weekend (September 4-6, 2015), organized by Atlantic Region Motor Sports (ARMS) under the stewardship of Jason Smith.

“After a several year absence from the National Calendar, ASN Canada FIA is pleased that, the Canadian Time Attack Championship event will be held later this year,” said Terry Epp, chairman of ASN Canada FIA's National SoloSport Committee. “With the support of ASN National SoloSport championships’ presenting sponsor, Toyo Tires Canada Ltd., we are looking forward to, once again, visiting the Atlantic region.”

“The last time the Canadian Time Attack Championship was held in Atlantic Motorsport Park was in 2009. The track is an 11 turn, 2.5 km road course challenge that competitors will enjoy. The highlight of the event will be the crowning of the 2015 overall Canadian Time Attack champion. The event organizing committee is already hard at work in preparing for this event.”

Jason Smith said, “We're excited to have the Canadian Time Attack Championship back at AMP. The track has recently undergone major repairs and we're looking forward to using the fresh pavement. We have fierce competition in this region and we expect this event to attract competitors from other parts of Canada and the Eastern US.”

Matthew Trivett, a member of the organizing committee said, “We are thrilled to be able to host the event. I've always considered AMP to be the hidden gem of the Maritimes as it is a very technical track that provides numerous challenges for drivers. With constant elevation changes, blind apex's and the extremely fun undulation of our 'roller coaster'; the track is fun for all competitors, but it certainly rewards disciplined driving. Momentum is the name of the game at this track!"

The event will be open to Time Attack competitors from across Canada and the United States and the organizers are indicating that plans call for a lot of track time so competitors will have time to learn the track and dial in their vehicles before the competition portions begin where, once again, they will experience the extended track times to set their best times on both days of competition.

Canadian Time Attack Championship Fast Facts:

The ASN Canadian Time Attack Championship was created by the ASN National SoloSport Committee to provide an opportunity to for those SoloSport competitors in Time Attack to have their own Canadian championship. The first 'CTAC' championship was held in 2005 at Ontario's Shannonville race track. For the next four years, the event ran at different race tracks in eastern Canada: 2006 at Ste Eustache race track in Quebec, 2007 at Mosport and 2008 at Calabogie Motorsports Park in Ontario and then at Atlantic Motorsport Park, Nova Scotia in 2009. In 2011, the event ran again at Mosport. (For 2010, 2012, 2013 and 2014, the championship was not held.)
